Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The Abstract contains legal phraseology.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 5-7 there is lack of antecedent basis for "the protuberances".

In claims 6 and 9 there is lack of antecedent basis for "the centering noses" as claim 1 sets forth "nose-like centering projections".

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over European Patent 270,702 in view of German Patent 3,535,361.

The European Patent shows a pusher for a scraper conveyor having upper and lower embracing members with a centering projection 60 between them on a nose area and a gap between the members, see Figure 4. Not disclosed is the upper member as being bow-like and wrapping around the ends of the lower member. Rather the opposite is shown. However, shown by the German Patent is a bow-like upper member wrapped around a lower member. To include such an arrangement on the European Patent would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as a design expediency that might provide a more stable scraper.

Re claims 2-5, 7 and 8, see Figure 4.

Re claim 6, the protuberances are centering noses.

Re claim 9, at least one of these limitations is present.

Re claim 10, shown is a depression.

Re claim 11, the shown chain is held by friction.

Re claim 12, see recess 3.

Re claim 13, the German Patent teaches this as can be seen in Figure 1.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
